TEXAS THINKS HARDING'S THE SWEETEST MAN!

By RUSS SOMONTON
N. E. A. Staff Correspondent.
FRONT PORCH, Marion, O., August 27.—"The sweetest man in the world!" is Miss Texas Guinan's dis- up of Can- dide Warren G. Harding. Texas, a dan- ing cow-girl from the western movie studios, is one of the Harding Theatrical leag- uers who made a memorable pil- grimage to the Front Porch. She wore the first pair of the new all-silk, all- net stockings seen in Marion.

It was the sen- ator's eyes that captivated Texas. Near Harding stood Eugene O'Brien, known from pole to pole as the "world's perfect lover."

"Yes," she appraised aloud, "Gene's a handsome devil, but look at the senator's eyes. Oh! Such eyes! I wish he'd take those glasses off. I think he's the sweet- est man in the world!"

Charles Evans Hughes, Republi- can candidate for president in 1916, stood in the background, wearing a fatherly "boys will be boys" smile.

"Nice little party!" I offered. "It is," said the judge. "I won- der if that's a real rose or an arti- ficial rose Miss Margaret Namara is wearing!" And he edged through the crowd to the rose and the grand opera singer.

Later I noticed he had the rose.

Leo Carillo, famous for his Italian characterizations, delighted Mrs. Harding with the "Italian politician's speech on George Washington's Birthday."

She ought to be First Lady of the Land," declared Carillo. "She's got a sense of humor!"

"Now this matter of prohibi- tion!" announced Al Johnson, mas- ter of ceremonies at the big lunch- on given the actors, as he hoist- ed his lithe frame to the table top. "Now on this mat- ter of prohibi- tion!"

Senator Hard- ing at teh other end of the table looked startled. Instinctively he reached for his coffee cup. I don't think he even considered throw- ing it.

"I say on the problem of drink," said Johnson, and all but Al were silent. "I wouldn't care if all the liquor in the world was at the bottom of the sea! That's right, Senator, that's right. As a boy I studied deep sea diving!"

The senator laughed a laugh of relief.

Texas Guinan (who was assist- ant-life-of-the-party with Al Johnson as main-life-of-the-party) slipped an orange punch and smoked a cigaret in a secluded part of the garden. The word spread through Marion like wild-fire. That even- ing you could find 100 residents downtown who saw her do it.

Low Cody was the man she talk- ed with.

"I thought when this here party was started it was going to be the bunk!" she said. "But I'm having a swell time! Say, do you know, Mrs. Harding says she'd rather be a cow-girl than live in the White house!"

"Ah, it is his eyes! His eyes, ah, ah, ah!"

Edgar Selwyn, movie director, agreed with Texas Guinan.

"I'd vote for him anywhere," he enthused, "but I'd rather sign a movie contract with him! Why, with those eyes of his I'd cast him as a sort of minister plenipotentiary and extraordinary and let him be the guy that comes in when everybody is all sore at each other and says: 'Well, boys, let's get to- gether.' Ah, he'll make a wonder- ful president with those eyes!"
